July 4: Party with The Roots, Mayer, Lovato

Celebrate. Mayor Nutter billed Welcome America! as "the largest party" in the US.

The Roots will serve as the house band, but Jimmy Fallon isn't coming.

"He does his own thing on the Fourth," Tariq "Blackthought" Trotter of the Roots said Thursday.

The homegrown group, which usually serves as the house band for Fallon's late-night talk show, helped city officials Thursday announce the lineup for the Wawa Welcome to America! festival.

This year, the Roots will be joined by John Mayer, Ne-Yo, Demi Lovato, Ben Taylor, J. Cole, Grace Potter and Jill Scott.

"We are excited to be back celebrating the Fourth of July in our hometown and we can't wait to put on another great show for everyone on the Parkway this year," said Roots drummer Ahmir "?uestlove" Thompson.

This year will mark the festival's 20th anniversary.

The event, which attracted approximately 600,000 people last year, will stream live on VH1.com.

Mayor Michael Nutter billed the event, which will take place on the Benjamin Franklin Parkway on July 4, as "the largest party in America."

Despite requests, Nutter said he wouldn't take the stage.

"I know my limitations," he said.

Seven days

Other events throughout the festival include:

- "Silver Linings Playbook" at Rittenhouse Square, 9 p.m., July 1.
- National Constitution Center offers free admission all day July 2.
- Free Wawa hoagies at the Independence Visitor Center Lawn, Noon to 2 p.m., July 2.
- Peter Nero and Philly Pops! free concert at Independence Hall, 8 p.m., July 3
- Party on the Parkway, Noon to 10 p.m., July 4, with a fireworks display over the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Haven. New shelter will double domestic violence victim beds

Councilmen Bill Greenlee and Kenyatta Johnson, along with representatives from Women Against Abuse, will on Monday announce the establishment of Philadelphia's second 100-bed emergency shelter, which will double the number of beds for domestic violence victims.

"That the fifth-largest city in the nation had just 100 beds for domestic violence victims was unacceptable," Greenlee said in a statement. The facility will be made possible by a $3 million appropriation from City Council and a $2.5 million grant from the Office of Supportive Housing. METRO

Wanted

Police: Couple took naked photos in park

Beaver County police are looking for a couple seen taking nude photographs of two girls Sunday afternoon in Brush Creek Park. Investigators are concerned that the girls may be underage and want to identify them to ensure a crime did not occur. METRO

Robbery. Suspects bound prostitute, lured johns to hotel

Tinicum Township Police are looking for two men and a woman who allegedly accosted a prostitute inside a hotel room, held her at knife and gunpoint, tied her up and gagged her.

When her john arrived, he was also bound with duct tape, according to police. The suspects allegedly attempted to send money grams and access debit cards.

Investigators said they kept both the john and prostitute bound and gagged for hours, as the female suspect accepted calls on the prostitute's phones and tried to lure more men to the room. METRO

City workers in poverty doubled under Nutter

Labor. A recent study found that the number of city workers who make poverty wages has doubled since Nutter took office.

A recent study from Temple University associate professor of economics Michael Bognanno found the percentage of city workers living in poverty has doubled under the tenure of Mayor Michael Nutter.

Members of Philadelphia's two municipal unions — AFSCME District Councils 47 and 33 — have been working for five years without a contract.

Between 2007 and 2013, there was a 50.6 percent increase in the number of D.C. 47 and 33 employees who earn less than the federal poverty guideline, as adjusted for Philadelphia's cost of living.

A combined 41.9 percent of D.C. 33 and 47 employees now earn poverty wages — a huge jump from the 20.7 percent of workers who faced the same conditions in 2007.

"This report confirms what our members have felt for years under Mayor Nutter," D.C. 33 president Pete Matthews said in a statement.

"Every day he refuses to negotiate with our members forces more and more of these hard working men and women into poverty."

By the numbers

$35K

$35,310 is the federal poverty guideline for a family of four, per Philadelphia's cost of living.

58%

58 percent of D.C. 33 members, alone, earn less than $35,310.

41.9%

41.9 percent of D.C. 33 and 47 workers, together, earn less than $35,310.

$30K

$30,975 was in 2007 the federal poverty guideline for a family of four, adjusted for Philadelphia's cost of living.

One cancer survivor to 'race for the cure'

Mother's Day. Sharonda Vincent, who was diagnosed with breast cancer at age 29, wants to help raise funds and awareness.

Shareesa Frink-Hayes, Sharonda Vincent, Richenda White /PROVIDED

Two months before her wedding, and only a day before her 30th birthday, Sharonda Vincent, of Philadelphia, gave herself a breast exam. "For some reason," Vincent said, "I just decided to do one. I never had done one before."

She found a lump.

Several tests and a painful biopsy later, it was confirmed cancer. And it was her now husband — who tried to alleviate the blow of the news with an impromptu work lunch, who had to tell her. "I immediately started crying," she said.

But Vincent, now 37, wasn't upset for long. She prayed for support. And after that, she said, "It was a walk in the park."

Quoted

"I was dealing with something older women deal with."
Vincent

She got married during that "emotional roller coaster" and only three weeks after her wedding, had surgery and started rounds of chemotherapy and radiation. The tests were successful: She was cancer-free.

But the aggressive approach doctors took with her didn't leave her unscathed.

"It was a time I should have been enjoying my life," she said. "I was dealing with something older women deal with."

During treatment, she had a solid support system.

"My family was really great," she said, especially her husband, twin sister, aunt and mother.

Her grandmother was also battling breast cancer at the time. She leaned on her for support.

This will be Vincent's fourth year in the Race for the Cure on Mother's Day. "My story could change the life of someone else."

Accused. Ariel Castro posted on Facebook about 'real women'

Bail for accused Cleveland kidnapper Ariel Castro was set at $8 million on Thursday in the decade-long abduction ordeal of three young women and a child, who was conceived and born in captivity.

In what now appears to be a chilling premonition, Ariel Castro posted a message on Facebook about "real women" and how they should handle the breakdown of a relationship when a child is involved.

Castro appears to have joined Facebook on Feb. 18 of this year — less than three months before his name would make worldwide headlines as the accused abductor of three missing women.

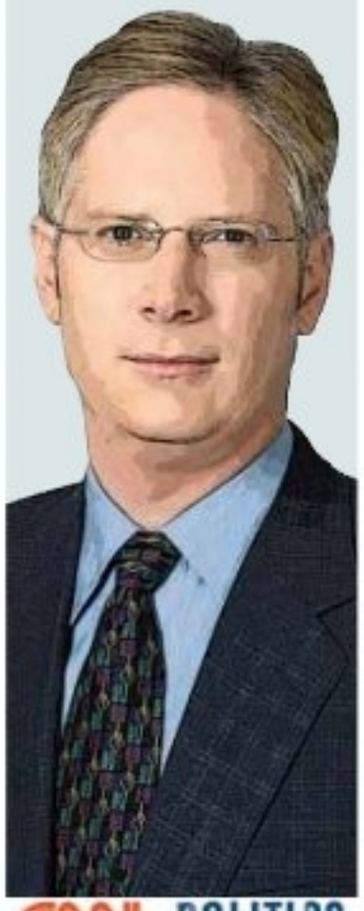
Opinion

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN



CNN=POLITICS

NAME CALLING

Here is a riddle that is politically incorrect in almost every conceivable way: When is a Hispanic not a Hispanic? You can insert your own inappropriate response here, but the real answer appears to be: whenever former New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson decides so.

I was surprised this week when Richardson, a staunch and highly visible Hispanic Democrat, suggested that Republican Sen. Ted Cruz from Texas can't be "defined as a Hispanic" because he sees the matter of illegal immigration differently than the governor might wish.

Let's review: Cruz's father is Cuban. He came to this country and built a life for his family, and his son openly talks about his admiration for his immigrant father. Cruz was freely elected in a state with a huge Hispanic population. And while his approach to immigration reform does not jibe with the White House's, it is also far from the door slamming policy that Richardson and others like to suggest Republicans want.

Quoted

"We've heard others apply what we might call 'the Richardson test' before. Liberal critics have called Barack Obama not 'black enough' because his policies toward the poor have disappointed them."

We've heard others apply what we might call "the Richardson test" before. Liberal critics have called Barack Obama not "black enough" because his policies toward the poor have disappointed them. Older gay rights activists have furiously denounced younger gays who dare to espouse a conservative political outlook. And on it goes.

What's really troubling Richardson, I suspect, is that Cruz is emerging as something of a Republican champion; someone who, unlike many in the GOP lately, seems able to excite attention and grab headlines. In other words, Cruz is doing what any group … indeed, all of us living in a democracy … ought to admire: He is making his voice heard and taking part in representative government. Whether you agree with his politics or not is beside the point.

Richardson later suggested he was misunderstood. Maybe so. But he could have easily said, "Ted Cruz is not my kind of Hispanic." That would have been fair enough and would have conveyed his point just fine. Instead, the phrase he chose probably told people more about Bill Richardson than it did about his target.

Bangladesh. Eight killed in fire; collapse death toll tops 900

Eight people were killed when a fire swept through a clothing factory in Bangladesh, police and an industry association official said on Thursday, as the death toll from the collapse of another factory building two weeks ago climbed above 900.

The fire, in an industrial district of Dhaka, comes amid global attention on safety standards in Bangladesh's booming garment industry following the catastrophic collapse of Rana Plaza, on the outskirts of the city, in the world's deadliest industrial accident since the Bhopal disaster in India in 1984. Britain said on Thursday it was "very likely" the Syrian government had used chemical weapons, and Turkey announced it was stepping up testing of people fleeing the Syrian civil war for traces.

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry expressed gratitude to Russia for its willingness to try to arrange a "Geneva two" conference to negotiate an end to the conflict, in a sign of a thawing of the long diplomatic chill between Washington and Moscow, Syria's strongest ally.

Damascus and the head of the Arab League welcomed the apparent rapprochement between the United States and Russia this week. Syrian opposition leaders are skeptical of an initiative they fear might let President Bashar al-Assad hang on to power.

Syria's foreign ministry said Damascus was convinced by "the firm Russian stance which is based on the U.N. principles of non-interference in international affairs or the threat to use force against the safety of any state."

Israel has asked Russia not to sell Syria an advanced air defense system that would help Assad fend off foreign military intervention as he battles more than two years of rebellion. REUTERS

S-300

The S-300 missile is designed to shoot down planes and missiles at 125-mile ranges. It would enhance Syria's current Russian-supplied defenses, which failed to deter Israel from launching air strikes around Damascus last weekend.

Boston chief speaks

US needs more security at big events

Davis / GETTY IMAGES

Major public events in the United States like the Boston Marathon need tighter security but officials must steer clear of moving toward a "police state," Boston's top cop said on Thursday at a congressional hearing into last month's bombing.

The city's police commissioner, Edward Davis, called for more use of surveillance cameras and other technology as well as special police units and more undercover officers as ways to provide more security. But the public's privacy must also be protected, he added.

The hearing by the House of Representatives Homeland Security Committee is the first in a series examining events leading up to the bombing that struck crowds cheering at the finish of the marquee race. REUTERS

The body of suspected Boston Marathon bomber Tamerlan Tsarnaev has been entombed and is no longer in the city of Worcester, Mass., where it had been held at a funeral home, the Worcester Police Department said on Thursday.

"A courageous and compassionate individual came forward to provide the assistance to properly bury the deceased," said Worcester Police Sgt. Kerry Hazelhurst.

The 26-year-old ethnic Chechen died in an April 19 gun battle with police, four days after he and his younger brother Dzhokhar are suspected of having set off bombs at the finish line of the Boston Marathon that killed three people and injured 264.

Quoted

"A courageous and compassionate individual came forward to provide the assistance to properly bury the deceased."

Hazelhurst

The question of where to bury the elder Tsarnaev had proven to be a thorny one, with city officials in Boston and in neighboring Cambridge, where he lived, refusing to accept the body for burial.

His widow, Katherine Russell, had asked that Tsarnaev's body be released to his family.

An uncle, Ruslan Tsarni of Montgomery Village, Md., said on Sunday he had wanted his nephew to be buried in Massachusetts. REUTERS

Blipp this!

Daft Punk is not playing at my house, but R. Kelly is

Rumors ran rampant that Phoenix would include their childhood friends Daft Punk in their Coachella performances. But they had done that already, in 2010 at Madison Square Garden. The band didn't want to give in to predictable expectations, but they also didn't want to disappoint by not having a special guest. After last year's Virtual 2Pac, they knew the bar had been set high for special guests. Their solution was to do exactly what nobody would ever consider: Ask R. Kelly. To hear Mars' account of what happened behind the scenes, visit www.metro.us or just Blipp here. (If you don't know what Blipping is, turn to page 34 and see the crossword.)

Phoenix: 'Something bigger than music'

Still rising. The French band keep moving from a mess to the masses.

The word that Thomas Mars sings the most on the new Phoenix album is "alone." (We stopped counting after 25 times!) It might seem strange that with such solitary subject matter, these four guys from the French suburbs are reaching the biggest audiences of their career.

"When you make an album, you have to be disconnected," says Mars. "You have to make this for yourself. And then when you're on tour, you feel something else suddenly. It's distinctively different."

To witness the band translating the songs from the April-released "Bankrupt!" to the masses, this distinct difference is striking. While Mars sings "I'd rather be alone" on the refrain of lead-off single, "Entertainment," he's jumping into the audience and demonstrating that he'd actually rather connect on a universal note with people who have obviously felt the same way.

While the band looked quite comfortable headlining Coachella last month, playing for about 180,000 people over two weekends, this bigger stage show has not been without its growing pains.

Phoenix play at the Susquehanna Bank Center in Camden, N.J., on Sunday and at the Made in America Festival in August. / ARNAUD POTIER

Quoted

"When you make an album, you have to be disconnected. You have to make this for yourself." Mars

"It's a discovery for us," says Mars. "When we started, we weren't sure of the possibility to make those monster shows. Then, at some point, after a few experiments, we saw some sort of poetic value or some kind of Roman Empire quality to it: something grand, something bigger than music."

But part of how Phoenix achieve this grand scale is by maintaining intimacy. Mars says he has been going into the audience to sing since the band began, before the new millennium.

"There have been a few shows I remember when we played, when there was not even a stage," he says. "We were the same height as the crowd and you show that you're really immersed into it. So I think that's something that we miss — and we try to always have that, even to this day."

The album

The past is always present

"Bankrupt!" feels very much like a summer album. The dense layers provide new discoveries on repeat listens; it's a sunshine soundtrack to make a mundane summer job less mundane, with melodies ready for group singing in the car with your friends. The sound is decidedly more synth-based than the guitar-heavy tracks that put the band on the map with 2009's "Wolfgang Amadeus Phoenix." There's also a feel of the music of the band members' youth, as they steal a drum sound directly from Prince. But this is definitely not retro music.

"There's a lot of late '70s analog keyboard and the digital keyboards from the '80s and drum machines," explains Mars. "And then there's all the new stuff. But the thing is, all this new stuff, they don't really have color. They will all sound like something from 2010 or 2013 in a few years. But right now they don't have any identity."

The best of the big fests

Buy a bus ticket with your concert ticket.
If you only go to one concert this summer, you're probably going to want to see as many acts as you can — which is why it's worth it to get a little muddy.

No, it's not an amusement park ride, but it is amusing: The crowds at last year's Bonnaroo are fenced in and rocking out. / GETTY IMAGES

THE GREAT GOOGAMOOGA
May 17-19, Brooklyn, N.Y.
The second annual Great GoogaMooga takes over the Nethermead Meadow in Brooklyn's Prospect Park, uniting passions for food and music. The Flaming Lips headline, Chairlift will do a DJ set or two, and locals the Yeah Yeah Yeahs and Matt and Kim are also on the bill.

How can so many big name superstars squeeze oversized egos onto one little island?

Bonnaroo

June 13-16, Manchester, Tenn.
You never who you'll meet at Bonnaroo: According to legend, Kings of Leon drummer Nathan met his wife Jesse in the potty line. Needless to say, it's huge and romantic, and this year's three-and-a-half-day lineup includes desert drifters Calexico, Paul McCartney and Wu-Tang Clan's Friday night spot is high on many to-do lists.

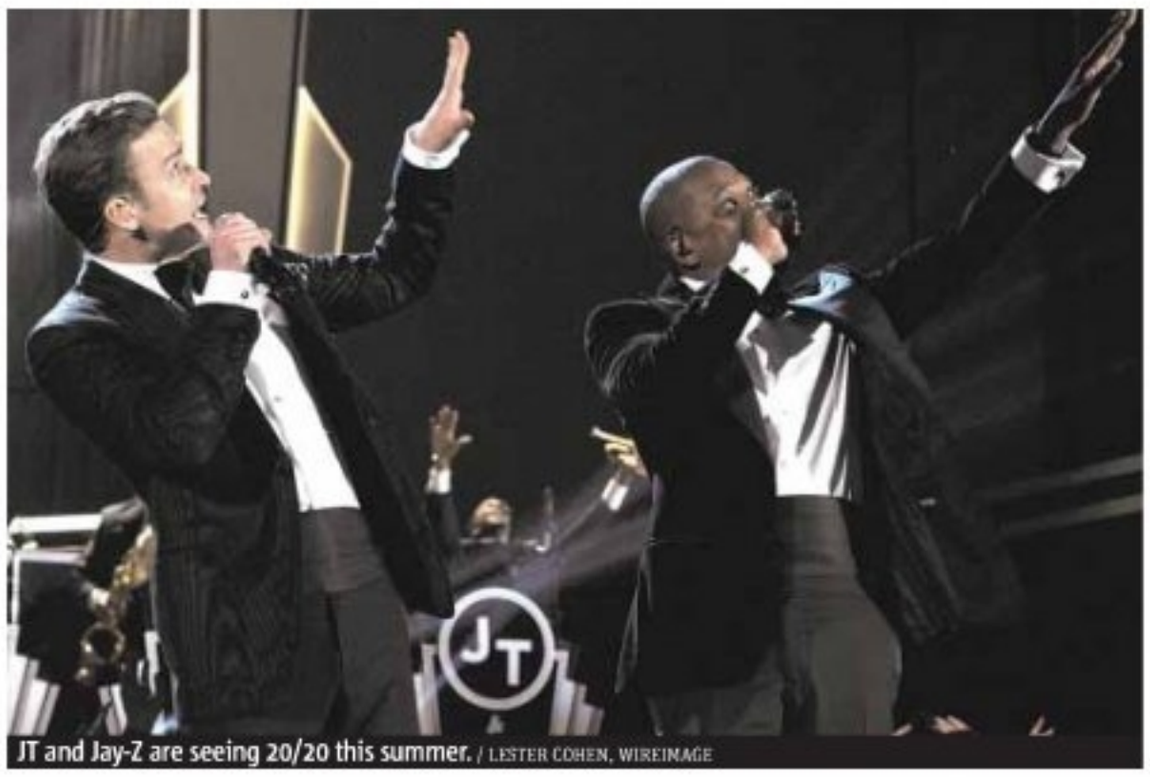
Concert roundup. Whether you're tailgating before the show or rocking out inside the venue, the summer concert is a ready-made soundtrack that is just awaiting your participation to build memories. Here are the biggest and best bets for your concert dollar.



JT and Jay-Z are seeing 20/20 this summer. / LESTER COHEN, WIREIMAGE

Justin Timberlake and Jay-Z

Arguably the biggest tour of the summer, it remains to be seen how Jay-Z and JT will split the stage on The 20/20 World Tour. We can only hope that there are 20 songs from each artist, rather than a staged recreation of the best moments of ABC's most popular investigative journalism TV show. That said, it would be awesome if they did that for the first few shows and then switched it up by the time they got here. Aug. 13, Citizens Bank Park

KENNY CHESNEY
One thing that has not changed in America for the past 100 years: Cowboys are still really good at herding large groups of mammals into confined open-air structures. Eric Church, Eli Young Band and Kacey Musgraves round out this rootin'-tootin' bill. June 8, Lincoln Financial Field

THE ROLLING STONES
It is impossible to refute the naysayers' complaint that the Stones are old. Their current string of shows is celebrating the band's 50th anniversary of their formation and first album. But it's also impossible to refute that the World's Greatest Rock 'n' Roll band is still worth seeing. Switching up sets to dip into obscurities in their deep catalogue, you'll get to hear some classic tunes. Whew! We did that without using either a "Satisfaction" reference or "You Can't Always Get What You Want" reference. June 18 and 21, Wells Fargo Center

BRUNO MARS
Bruno Mars has turned his "Unorthodox Jukebox" into a 1980s time machine, which works out just fine for his opening act, Fitz and the Tantrums, who have also set the dial for the 1980s with their brand new "More Than Just a Dream." Wear your neon jams and join them. June 24, Wells Fargo Center

ONE DIRECTION
If seeing the New Kids/98 Degrees/Boyz II Men show bummed you out, go see a boy band that includes actual boys. June 25, Wells Fargo Center

JUSTIN BIEBER
Who would have thought at this time last year that the Justin Bieber tour would become the equivalent of the Rolling Stones 1972 tour in terms of rumored debauchery? We can only hope he's still around for his own "50 and Counting" tour in 2060. July 17, Wells Fargo Center

BEYONCE
Beyonce was going to release a new album this year. Remember that? Seems like she might not have remembered either, as Mrs. Carter sets out on the Mrs. Carter Show World Tour before her new songs have even hit the market. It's kind of like when it's the end of the school year, and absolutely all of your friends are psyched to be done with exams, but you've still got one left that you totally forgot to study for. July 25, Wells Fargo Center

NICK LACHEY

The 98 Degrees crooner is back on the road with the boys, plus singing lullabies.

THE FULL 'PACKAGE'

With his new Fisher-Price CD "A Father's Lullaby," Nick Lachey found a way to combine two of his greatest loves: music and his son, Camden. But his latest solo project and his 8-month-old son aren't the only projects keeping him busy these days: He's also readying for a summer tour with the reunited 98 Degrees, hopping state-to-state with Boyz II Men and New Kids on the Block on an arena tour appropriately dubbed "The Package." And on top of that, 98 Degrees have just released a new album — their first in more than a decade. We caught up with Lachey before he started tour rehearsals.

We hear you're gonna bring Camden on the road with you this summer.
Yeah. He changes so much and I don't want to miss a moment, so selfishly I'm gonna bring him.

You're not the only dad on this tour. What's that scene gonna be like?
Between the three bands on this tour, we have about 30 kids combined. There's gonna be quite a few kids and quite a few nannies running around.

Was it easy to pick up where 98 Degrees left off?
It was really natural, and it almost seemed like it was yesterday. That felt good. … It's been a lot of fun — and as long as we're having fun, the rest is easy.

Will you be showing off any new dance moves?
We will be dancing. Some people call it dancing. Other people may call it convulsing.

And will we see some shirtless singers?
I would go out on a limb and say at some point, someone's shirt will be off. We're very competitive, so if everyone else is taking shirts off, we gotta show what we got.

So it sounds like kids' music isn't the be-all, end-all of your career.
[Laughs] If that were the case, I'd be fine with that. I loved making that record. But no, it's cool to be able to do different things.

Do you play your lullaby album for Camden?
When I was recording it, I'd bring home demos and test them out to see which ones he responded to. But now I just sing the live version to him.

Is bedtime is your favorite part of the day with him?
I do put him down sometimes, but a lot of times Vanessa puts him down and I wake him up. We'll have the morning together. I change him and get him his bottle. We eat breakfast and hang out. It's like the guys' time.

How's diaper duty going?
That's the easy part. You do them for a week and you become a pro at it.

A change of Hart

Blues. Beth Hart has been down and out, but she's ready to watch her career go "Bang Bang Boom Boom."

Beth Hart plays a sold-out show at The Blockley on Saturday.
JEFF KATZ

What may be most moving about the footage of Beth Hart performing at the Kennedy Honors concert in December, is watching the members of her audience realize what a powerful moment they're witnessing. Hart nonchalantly walks out onto the stage to join guitarist Jeff Beck to sing "I'd Rather Go Blind," a song made famous by the late Etta James. The segment is to honor blues great Buddy Guy, who is transfixed from the first note Hart sings. Later in the song, the camera pans to the Obamas, who are deep in reverent head-nodding that transcends any possible polite pretending for the camera. And when she finishes, the members of Led Zeppelin are among the first to their feet for a standing ovation.

"I remember I sat myself down and I was like, 'Don't miss enjoying this amazing experience that's coming your way by being nervous. Just focus and do your gig,'" recalls Hart, who had been releasing records for more than 15 years before she took the stage that night

Hart says she didn't actually watch the performance until she was home for the holidays with her family.

"To have my mother watch that and see that — she's just like the center of my life — it was really something else, definitely the highlight of my life," says Hart.

Clean in the US

Dancing barefoot

Hart is enjoying a renaissance with her latest album, "Bang Bang Boom Boom," as she tours the U.S. for the first time in a decade. Drugs nearly derailed her career in the '90s.

"This is my first time being clean for the United States and I'm just having a ball," she says, joyfully, before adding one of the few memories from her darker days. "I was playing at a venue where Patti Smith was playing and I'm just the most hugest Patti Smith fan and we walk in and as we cross the floor I go, 'Oh my God, I remember coming out here in my bathing suit and taking a shower with a hose!' ... It kind of bummed me out. Then I thought, 'You've grown a lot. ... Move on.'"

This comic doesn't care what you think

Humor. You probably shouldn't bring your mom to Steve Hofstetter's show on Mother's Day.

Steve Hofstetter comes right out and says what he feels. If it insults you, screw you. He sees himself more social critic than comedian — but please keep buying tickets to see his act, which will be at the Hard Rock Cafe on Sunday.

"I do not hold back," Hofstetter tells Metro. "I research my stances enough to know that my facts are 100-percent accurate and my opinions are reasonable — and if anybody gets offended by anything, it's their fault, and frankly I don't care."

Hofstetter's brand of comedy doesn't appeal to everyone. It can be offensive, it can be insulting, it can even be somewhat vindictive. Some people can't handle that; others relish it. Hofstetter's fans adore him because he insists on interacting with them. On album release dates, he promises a million free downloads on his website. He responds frequently to Twitter messages and loves replying to fan mail, something he credits to his love of baseball.

The comedian is bringing his distinct brand of humor to Philly.
PROVIDED

"I wrote to [baseball player] Paul Molitor when I was growing up," he says. "I wasn't a Brewers fan, but I always liked Paul Molitor, so I sent him a baseball card. Not only did he send it back with an autograph, he sent it back in a self-addressed envelope. So once people started writing to me, I realized that it might not mean that much to you, but it means that much to them."

And while Hofstetter, a lifelong New York Mets fan, still loves sports — he writes for Sports Illustrated — he promises he'll take it easy on Philadelphia fans.

"This is the same city that had a courthouse built into the stadium, that threw snowballs at Santa Claus, that throws batteries at opposing players and your own players. … Philly is badass."

That's not to say he won't mess with the audience. Sunday is Mother's Day. Heckle at your own risk.

"Hopefully, it's not a bunch of people with their mothers there, or they are going to feel very awkward."

Warning

Best heckling moment

Hofstetter isn't afraid to call unruly crowd members out. Once someone starts jawing, all bets are off. At a show in Florida, he put a drunk woman that was insulting him in her place, betting her $100 that she couldn't do five minutes of stand-up and get a laugh. As she walked on to the stage he produced a $100 bill from his wallet and asked her to do the same. She couldn't.

"I told her, 'Not only are you not good enough at my job to make $100, you are not good enough at your job to make $100,'" he recalls. "Man, I wish I had that one on tape, the crowd exploded."

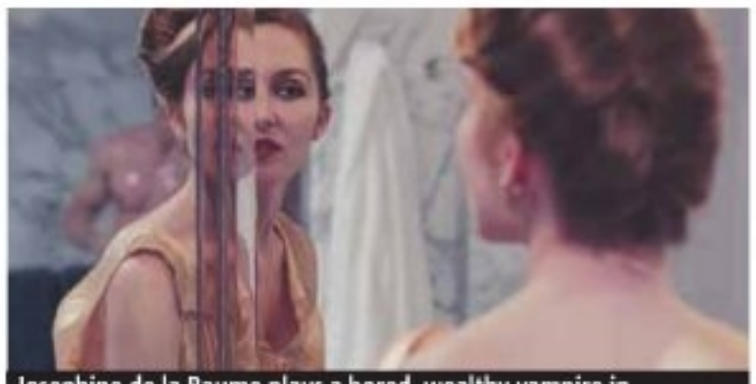
John Cassavetes' daughter goes vamp

Vampire film. Xan Cassavetes' "Kiss of the Damned" finds new ways to freshen up a tired, tired genre.



Josephine de la Baume plays a bored, wealthy vampire in "Kiss of the Damned." / MAGNET RELEASING

From the title down, Xan Cassavete's addition to the towering, near-collapsing vampire pile pays homage to the trashy, atmospheric Euro-horrors of Roger Vadim and Jean Rollin, but filtered through an eccentric personality. Josephine de la Baume plays Djuna, an immortal who melts for Paolo (Milo Ventimiglia), a brooding screenwriter who ignores her vague warnings and winds up in a chain-heavy sex scene right out of Paul Schrader's "Cat People" remake.

As written as it's directed, the film has a script that keeps coming up with fresh angles on vampires, a task that may sound daunting considering how seldom most people come up with genuinely novel twists, particularly once Djuna's sister Mimi (Roxane Mesquida) enters and tears a hellzapoppin' hole in her sister's life and in the film, upending their dull routines with unnecessary gougings and doomed threesomes. "Damned" sometimes tries too hard to be original, but there's worse problems to have.

The difficult-to-play 'Gatsby'

Interview. Leonardo DiCaprio and Carey Mulligan talk about the challenge of playing opaque characters.

Leonardo DiCaprio and Carey Mulligan star in "The Great Gatsby." / WARNER BROS. PICTURES

What Baz Luhrmann did to F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby" has dominated reports on the film: the 3-D, the rap music, the digital busyness of a film about flappers and pre-Depression excess. But there are still actors, still characters they had to play — ones who have been debated over the novel's nine-decade existence.

"Everyone has an interpretation of who these characters are," says Leonardo DiCaprio, who underlines the Robert Redford comparisons further by playing mystery millionaire Jay Gatsby, as Redford did in the film adaptation from 1974. "The 'Gatsby' I remember reading when I was 15 years old is far different the 'Gatsby' I read as an adult," he says. "What I remembered was this hopeless romantic, who was solely in love with one woman, who created this great amount of wealth to respectfully hold her hand.

"To reread it as an adult, it was fascinating. It's nuanced, it's existential — and at the center is this man who is incredibly hollow. He's attached himself to this relic known as Daisy. She's a mirage," he says. "I was struck by the sadness in him the first time. Now I look at him completely differently. I look at him as someone who is very hollow and searching for some meaning. He's holding on to this image. One very telling sequence is when Nick notices that Gatsby is holding on to Daisy, but he still staring at the green light [across the bay]. He's finally got her in his arms, but he's still searching for this thing he thinks will complete him. That's the Gatsby I was incredibly excited about playing as an actor."

Carey Mulligan had similar difficulties with Daisy, the trophy wife, married to wealthy cad Tom (Joel Edgerton), with whom Gatsby is obsessed. "There are holes in Daisy's character, and she disappears for a long time," Mulligan explains. "Often she's not saying what she means, or acts quite erratically. There's quite a lot to fill in, just to play her consistently." Readers have to wonder which is the real Daisy: Is she a mere trophy wife? Or is she smarter than she lets on? "She was a product of her time. When I defend Daisy, I always say she came from a family that would demand she marry for money. If she didn't, that would have been scandalous."

DiCaprio, on re-reading the novel

The timing

Modernizing a 'Great'

Though Luhrmann worked to sculpt Fitzgerald's novel for today's audiences, the novel has much to say about our own era. "It's a book that talks about the great opulence in America during that time period, and the idea that the future is endless and we can keep consuming and living the way we do without any consequences," DiCaprio says. It's timeless in the sense that it's an 80-year-cycle. We encountered it again in our modern era. It's not an American novel in that regard; it's something that's worldwide. Fitzgerald is commenting on society and human nature and the great pursuit of wealth."

The dangers of putting 'Great' in a movie title

Review

'The Great Gatsby'

Director. Baz Luhrmann

Stars. Leonardo DiCaprio, Carey Mulligan

Rating. PG-13

Baz Luhrmann movie. The OTT filmmaker calms down a bit for F. Scott Fitzgerald — and is still wrong.

It's both tragic and nastily enjoyable when people who don't understand literary classics turn them into films. The funniest part about Baz Luhrmann's amusingly inappropriate 3-D-plus-Jay-Z film of "The Great Gatsby" comes right at the end. The judgmental but ineffectual blank slate Nick (Tobey Maguire) has written a book about the film's events. He writes the title: "Gatsby." But a sentimental mood overtakes him — the loss of a man (Leonardo DiCaprio) whose decency stood out amid a society of cads. So Nick adds "The Great."

Baz couldn't even crack open the CliffsNotes? This capper is the film's dumbest, forehead-slappiest moment. The rest is brain-drained and simplified, but almost disappointingly inoffensive — even with Bryan Ferry's jazz-tinged renditions of rap songs blasting as flappers guzzle martinis. Luhrmann's excess, as Luhrmann will tell you, is almost defensible when portraying a Rolling Twenties bacchanalia.

Luhrmann mostly keeps a lid on it. The 3-D isn't overdone, and is even sometimes well-done. The technology is mostly used on F. Scott Fitzgerald's actual words, which periodically float on to the screen when they're uttered — as though Luhrmann could possess their meaning by literally throwing it on the screen, in comin'-at-ya 3-D.

He can't — in part because he seems to think of "Gatsby" as a sad love story, with Daisy (Carey Mulligan) simply kept from Gatsby by mean Tom (Joel Edgerton). Luhrmann's version is faithful to the narrative, but fails to understand its complexities. Riotous, time-warp parties and all, he plays it straight — or as straight as one can when the actors always look like they're standing in front of green screen. Every image looks artificial, and the actors are directed to act like animatronic versions of themselves. Only DiCaprio, in the role he was born to play, makes it out alive.

A Tyler Perry film with no Tyler Perry

Kerry Washington, Craig Robinson and David Alan Grier redo "Meet the Parents" in "Peeples." / NICOLE RIVELLI

Review

'Peeples'

Director. Tina Gordon Chism

Stars. Craig Robinson, Kerry Washington

"Peeples" is an unabashed "Meet The Parents" ripoff, where Ben Stiller becomes the amateur child entertainer/psychologist Wade Walker (Craig Robinson). He's successful enough, but not in the same league as the family of so-called "chocolate Kenneds" from whom girlfriend Grace (Kerry Washington) comes. Robert De Niro's overprotective CIA hawk becomes the less cartoonish but still implacably hostile family patriarch Virgil (David Alan Grier), a model of Hamptons affluence. Wade follows Grace to an annual family gathering, gatecrashing his way through a series of copied "Parents" blunders: setting accidental fires and being suspected of drug use through no fault of his own.

Producer Tyler Perry's name may be on the product, but it lacks his usual admonitions about going to church and reconnecting with family as the first steps toward any reconciliation. Predictable comic obstacles are thrown at Wade, who unfailingly causes disaster throughout the first half before going on to charm everyone, save unamused dad. There are lessons about

The cast of "Aftershock" try to survive an earthquake in Chile.
RADIUS-TWC

'Aftershock'

Recent events have shown that horrific events can bring out the best in people. The gory thriller "Aftershock" goes the other way. It's a portrait of humanity if not at its most base, then close to it. Co-writer and co-producer Eli Roth co-stars as an American in Chile. When a massive earthquake hits, he and the cast find themselves fighting for survival in a collapsed society, where freed convicts roam the street, hungry for scantily clad victims.

Roth and his fellow screenwriters don't stop there. They keep hitting our protagonists with one unspeakable horror after another, while slowly picking off its cast. Seeming protagonists perish earlier than expected, and it soon becomes apparent that no one is safe, possibly not even the virginal prude classically designated as the surviving Final Girl. The film, helmed by Nicolas Lopez, lacks his craft: It's murky, technically slapdash and soon runs out of novel story twists. By the time one characters is revealed to be a secret psychopath — whoops! — the "hilarious" downer ending couldn't come sooner.

Salman Rushdie himself adapted the film version of his novel "Midnight's Children." / PALADIN & 108 MEDIA

An author adapts his own unadaptable book

Lit adaptation. Salman Rushdie takes a stab turning his own 1981 novel into a film.

Salman Rushdie's "Midnight's Children" runs some 500 pages, with so many characters that Wikipedia has a comprehensive page devoted to all of them. That this film version, with a script adapted by Rushdie himself (who joyfully narrates), is sometimes pleasurable, if largely superfluous, is something, at least. "Children" looks at the history of 20th-century India from the vantage point of one family, eventually settling on a too-nice hero. Even at more than two hours, this is one of the fastest dramas ever made, so intent on getting as much of the novel into the film that it's always on the move, even if very little sticks.

1 Maxim's Hot 100 likes 'em young

Maxim's Hot 100 list, which is a compilation of the world's sexiest women, is out. Here's the Top 5 (with their ages included by yours truly). Miley Cyrus, 20, takes top honors, while Selena Gomez, 20, is second, followed by Rihanna, 25, Mila Kunis, 29, and Jennifer Lawrence, 22.

The average age of these hot "women" is 23; the Top 2 cannot legally go to a bar. Sexiness while being over 30 doesn't exist, apparently.

Church leaders react angrily to David Bowie video

David Bowie dressed as Jesus walks into a bar .... and causes an uproar.

Church leaders have reacted angrily to the release of a video to accompany Bowie's latest single, "The Next Day," in which he poses as Jesus in a bar.

Lord Carey, the former Archbishop of Canterbury — the global head of the Anglican church — said the video was "juvenile" and urged Christians to "rise above it."

But he also couldn't resist having a dig: "I doubt that Bowie would have the courage to use Islamic imagery — I very much doubt it."

The video contains a sequence of Bowie in a bar in robes, striking a Christ-like pose. Gary Oldman and Marion Cotillard are also featured. Oldman is dressed as a priest, while Cotillard is in her underwear, with blood spurting from two wounds in her hands.

3 Neil Patrick Harris coming back to the Tonys, is adorable

Neil Patrick Harris is returning for the fourth time to host the 67th Tony Awards at Radio City Music Hall on June 9, organizers said on Thursday.

"It'll be more impressive than ever. If my math is correct, it will be 267 times bigger than last year," Harris said in the most adorable press release ever. "Oh wait. No. That can't ... hold on ... carry the one ... I'm awful at math. But rest assured, the show will rock."

4 Pete Wentz opens up about prescription pill addiction

Pete Wentz had a pill problem.

The 33-year-old bassist for Fall Out Boy (and the ex-husband of Ashlee Simpson) opens up in a new issue of Rolling Stone about how he sunk into a pill addiction after Fall Out Boy went on hiatus in 2009.

The rocker says he abused Xanax and Klonopin. "I was probably physically and mentally addicted," Wentz reveals. "It started from insomnia and anxiety from flying, then it spiraled."

He continues, "I felt like a loser already. I'd basically gone from being the guy in Fall Out Boy to being the guy, who, like, hangs out all day. I didn't see how I'd ever come out on the other side."

Things only got worse when Wentz split from Simpson. "I was scared of everything. I thought there were always people listening to me," he says. "Like, I had my house searched for bugs. It was crazy."

Wentz says he is clean now, thanks to work with a therapist and learning to be a better father to his son Bronx, 4.

Recipe. Whip up this classic for Mother's Day brunch.

Challah French Toast with Strawberries

This recipe makes three to four servings. / CHOW

For the strawberries:

1 Hull and slice the strawberries ¼ inch thick and place in a medium bowl. Finely zest the orange (you should have about 1 tablespoon). Add half of the zest to the bowl of strawberries. Set the other half aside for the French toast.

2 Slice ¼ inch off the top and bottom of the orange and set it flat on a work surface. Using a paring knife, follow the curve of the orange and slice off any remaining peel and white pith. Working over the bowl of strawberries, slice between the membranes to release the segments or supremes. Squeeze the juice from the membranes, and discard the membrane and peels.

3 Add the sugar to the bowl and stir to combine. Let sit at room temperature, stirring occasionally, until the sugar has dissolved and the strawberries have released some of their juices, at least 15 minutes or up to one hour. Meanwhile, prepare the French toast.

For the French toast:

1 Heat the oven to 200°F and arrange a rack in the middle. Place a baking sheet in the oven.

2 Place the milk, eggs, sugar, vanilla, salt and reserved orange zest in a shallow dish (a 13-by-9-inch baking dish works well) and whisk until the eggs are broken up and evenly incorporated and the sugar has dissolved.

3 Coat the bottom of a large cast iron or nonstick pan with a thin layer of oil and heat over medium until shimmering, about three minutes.

4 Dip a few slices of the bread in the milk mixture, turn to coat and let the excess drip off. Lay the soaked bread in a single layer in the pan and cook until browned on the bottom, about two to three minutes.

5 Flip and cook the second side until browned, about two minutes. Place the cooked toast on the heated baking sheet. Repeat with the remaining bread slices. Serve with the strawberry topping (stir before serving) and dust with powdered sugar, if using.

Ingredients

For the strawberries:

- 3 pints strawberries (about 1 ½ pounds)
- 1 medium orange
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar

For the French toast:

- 1 ½ cups whole milk
- 4 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- ¼ teaspoon fine salt
- Vegetable oil
- 1 loaf of challah or brioche, cut widthwise into 12 (1-inch-thick) slices
- Powdered sugar (optional)

We're all about the local craze, but some things are just better when they come overseas. Filicori Zecchini, purveyors of specialty coffee, tea and cocoa, is a third-generation company that was founded in Bologna in 1909. Now, it's officially launched in the States, bringing the single-origin roasting techniques that made it famous in Italy. For adventurous moms

Blue Cat Restaurant

Head to Latin America without leaving Fairmount. For the mothers who crave spicy food, or those who want to excite their palette, Blue Cat's Latin cuisine will do the trick. This BYOB offers a great atmosphere and authentic dishes. Be sure not to skip the oxtail stew.

Where to wine and dine your mom

If you didn't pay enough attention to mom's magic in the kitchen and the greatest Mother's Day gift might just be to spare her from your cooking, take her out on the town for an unforgettable meal — no clean-up required. Even if you think your mom is fussy, we've got something for her. Whether you're making reservations for brunch or for dinner, read on for our picks. JULIA WEST

Sabrina's

Bring mom to the place where you and your buddies go to nurse hangovers. Of course, brunch in Philly isn't complete without a long wait on the sidewalk, and Sabrina's, especially the Bella Vista location, is among the worst offenders. Though if your stomach growls loud enough, they just might pass around a plate of pastries to tide you over. Either way, the restaurant, with its cleverly named and perfectly executed rotating specials, is well worth it. Just make sure you warn mom about the comically large portions.

Supper

If the lady digs comfort food but seeks to taste a more elevated version, put Supper's brunch menu in front of her. The South Street restaurant knows it doesn't need to change a thing, so it'll be serving up the standard brunch, which includes options like eggs benedict on garlic knots with tomato jam and pork shoulder hot dogs with a side of fried pickles.

Garces Trading Company

You know you can't go wrong with a Jose Garces joint. Garces Trading Company is great for the mama who wants to try a little of everything. Though the plates are small and designed for sharing, don't confuse this place for the Iron Chef's pricier Amada, which serves Spanish tapas. The Trading Co. is more low-key, and equipped with a bakery and wine shop so mom can get everything she wants.

Bistrot La Minette

Give your mother a high-class dining experience at this French Philly staple. Typically this place has more of a romantic feel to it, but on Mother's Day it's all about spoiling your mama, who, by the way, deserves it. Call her more. On Sunday, let her dine on duck liver pate, braised rabbit and a generous serving of wine.

Music on the water

Entertainment. Morgan's Pier reopened for the season with a lineup of big names.

The Delaware waterfront might not have quite the panache some city planners and developers were hoping for — let's call it a work in progress — but that doesn't mean you can't still enjoy a cocktail and listen to live music while gazing out at river views.

Morgan's Pier, the beer garden/restaurant/music venue on Columbus Blvd., reopened for the season yesterday with a new menu for its 100-seat dining area (another 300 seats are available for casual a la carte eating). But while chef George Sabatino's move from the East Passyunk foodie favorite Stateside over to Morgan's Pier is getting all the attention, what we really want to know is what we're going to be dancing to.

"There's no constant theme — it's lots of different artists," says R5 Productions' Sean Agnew, who books musicians for every intimate Philly venue you've ever heard of. He's also part-owner of Morgan's Pier and in charge of bringing in the nightly DJs. His good friend David Pianka, aka Dave P of Making Time fame, also owns a piece of the Pier. Pianka has been busy lining up bands for the free Wednesday night concerts happening June through August.

This summer's entertainment calendar features bigger names then they brought in last year — including a few as-yet-unconfirmed ones Pianka says he's "really excited about," but won't disclose.

What we do know is the DJs spinning electronic beats on the weekends — like Claude VonStroke and Julio Bashmore — are "a lot bigger, a lot more popular," Pianka says. "These are international DJs who usually sell out huge clubs."

The same holds true for the live bands, which include We Were Promised Jetpacks, Ted Leo and the Pharmacists, Cold Cave, Small Black and Woods. "The shows we have on Wednesdays are going to be really popular," says Pianka. "Some of them are bands that would sell out at Union Transfer. And this is free."

The popular riverfront spot can seat up to 400 hungry and/or thirsty people. / PROVIDED

Thursday nights will feature a rotating residency of DJs playing a mix of funk, soul, hip hop, disco and house. As for Sundays, that's "the infamous Sundae party with guests like Questlove," Agnew says.

The new chef at MilkBoy promises he won't get rid of the bacon bowl. / MILKBOY

Brian Mahon likes a little competition

Hot chef. MilkBoy's new cook finds a balance for the restaurant's menu.

Brian Mahon is no stranger to Philadelphia kitchens. He's bounced around the city, working at the Constitution Center, Good Dog and, most recently, running the Perch Pub's back-of-house. Now Mahon is at the Center City restaurant and music venue, MilkBoy. His arrival was marked by the new menu that he created.

Just before MilkBoy, you were the executive chef at Perch Pub. Why did you leave?
[Perch Pub] is just a different animal than MilkBoy. It was a good fit for a while, though. I helped revamp their menu over there, which was like groundwork for doing it over here.

Is there a ton of pressure when making a new menu for a restaurant?
That has lots of answers. The concept isn't the hard part, it's implementing it while rolling with the menu that's already there. It's a balancing act because you need to incorporate new ingredients and new products while operating a busy restaurant. But so far the feedback has been awesome.

When you were making the new menu, was there any thing that didn't make the cut?
Well, yeah. I really wanted to have a classic poutine — fries, gravy, and cheese curds. But I had to have the squeaky white cheddar cheese curds, and that's where I ran into a problem. I couldn't source them for the right price. It was an issue of accessibility to the product while still making it a valuable dish.

If you go

How long have you been in Philly?
Since 2000. I grew up in Northeast Pennsylvania.

How have you seen the city change in the last 13 years?
I used to live in Fishtown when it was still very local and very strange, and there was a real interest in Center City food. Now the restaurant scene is snowballing, and it's competitive in a good way. All the line cooks I worked with became successful because we had good teachers, and the industry took off.

Horoscope

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. The way to acquire something you've been wanting will become apparent. It's up to you, to focus your efforts on making this happen.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Mask your assertiveness with unselfish actions and lots of charm. If you make sure that others benefit, you'll meet with success.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. If you don't give up on your dreams and keep a realistic viewpoint, you make success much more probable.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. You will be presented with some intriguing opportunities via your social contacts. It pays to be the nice guy, sometimes.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. There's no need to try to duck tedious assignments, because the troublesome things could be the easiest to handle.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. Closely observe the people you admire, because there's a strong possibility that you could profit from mimicking their behavior.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Something advantageous can come from an arrangement that is initiated by a close friend.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Your pleasant and cheerful demeanor today could serve as a magnet attracting all kinds of companions of similar dispositions.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. You have a special knack for handling jobs that require creativity. Use your artistic touch to transform the unsightly.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. There's no need to be surprised if an appealing someone evinces an interest in you. This person has been waiting for the right time.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Make the concerns of a close someone your top priority. He needs help that only you can provide.

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. As long as there is justification for it, be lavish in your praise. Approval will go far in securing loyalty.

Don't build a shrine to bomber

Re: "All deserve a proper burial" (Metro, May 9) "I'm not sure why Tsarnaev's final resting place is such an issue. ... What more do we want from him?" says one of your readers. I, for one, want certainty that his "final resting place" does not become a place of pilgrimage for murderous religious bigots. The way to be sure is to give him the same treatment as Osama bin Laden. In my book Tsarnaev is not "entitled" to more; he is, I suggest, entitled to precisely nothing. I agree that he "is someone's son, nephew, father etc." I am sorry for them, but not sorry enough to support a "proper burial."

BRIAN A. JONES, VIA E-MAIL

It's not the skin, it's perception

Re: "Metro's not doing girls any favors" (Metro, May 8) Letter writer Bruce Caley IS the problem. Our puritanical inheritance leads to a cultural belief that ties nudity to sexuality. Suggesting that too much skin is sexual, so skin needs to be covered up, is wrong, and leads to the fetishization and objectification of our bodies. We can either teach our kids the difference between nudity, sensuality and sexuality, or we can all adopt the burka. GEOFFREY PALMER, VIA E-MAIL

Albright, left, is a Philly native who played soccer at Penn Charter. / GETTY IMAGES

Albright gives Union more grit than stats

MLS. The native of Philadelphia is hoping the Union will be the last stop in his MLS career.

You don't always have to be playing to make your presence known. This sentiment rings true for Union defender Chris Albright.

Albright, who is playing in his 15th MLS season, has played in just one match this season for a total of three minutes. Still, his many accomplishments paint the portrait of a man universally respected around the league.

In his career, Albright has appeared in 22 games for Team USA, and he's been a part of three MLS Cup-winning teams (D.C. United in 1999 and L.A. Galaxy in 2002 and 2005) and was named to the MLS Best XI team in 2005.

While he may not physically be able to help out this young Union team, he has plenty of words of wisdom to throw around at any moment. He's happy to have other veterans on the team this year, like Sebastien Le Toux and Jeff Parke, to help him out.

"I'm an older guy, so I need some help keeping the locker room straight sometimes," said Albright. "Some guys lead by example, while others lead with a heavy hand. It's nice to have some older guys that can keep the team moving in the right direction."

One thing Le Toux and Parke can't tell them is what it's like to play for their country. It's an honor bestowed upon soccer's greatest competitors. Albright takes pride in that as his career comes closer to the end.

"A lot of the younger guys have picked my brain about my experience with the national team. It's soccer's greatest honor to be able to play for your country," said Albright.

Whether he walks away from the game this season or next, Albright's happy to be back home. Albright, a Philadelphia native and standout at Penn Charter, sees the Union as his last stop.

"This is definitely going to be my final destination," said Alright. "I'm so happy to be home."

Up next

The Union take on the Chicago Fire Saturday (1:30 p.m.) at Toyota Field. The club is set to roll out a brand-new lineup, too.

- jeff Parke (hamstring) and Sheanon Williams (red card) are out. Expect Bakary Soumare and Gabriel Farfan to take their minutes, according to Union manager John Hackworth.

Getting Bullish

James asks refs to step in

LeBron James said he expects the referees to take control of the Heat-Bulls series following Miami's Game 2 win, where nine technical fouls were doled out. The Heat's 115-78 win was the most lopsided win in playoff history. The series resumes May 10 in Chicago.

Staying power

Skins NEVER losing name

Washington Redskins owner Dan Snyder emphatically said he will never change the name of the franchise, despite it being offensive to Native Americans. "We'll never change the name," Snyder told USA Today. "It's that simple. NEVER — you can use caps."

CARFAX VEHICLE HISTORY REPORTS

Phillies. Debate over Manuel's future rages

Charlie Manuel is the ultimate player's manager.

"He has your back," Jimmy Rollins said. "He's incredibly supportive. You want to go out and play as hard as you can for him."

Still, he seems to get disrespected. Maybe it's because the Phils have not lived up to expectations in recent seasons.

"The people who think Charlie isn't a great manager don't understand baseball," former Mets skipper Jerry Manuel said. "Charlie is smart and slick as a fox. He's one of the best baseball men you'll ever meet."

Charlie Manuel is a lame duck. Despite having the best record of any manager in club history, his contract expires at the end of the season.

"So many people see Ryne Sandberg taking over but who knows?" said an NL scout.

"A lot depends on what happens this season. But whatever happens, you have to give [Charlie] Manuel a lot of credit for the Phillies success."

Uncle Charlie reaches another club milestone

MLB. The Phillies skipper passed legendary Gene Mauch for most games managed on Thursday night.

Manuel is 743-588.
GETTY IMAGES

If you told someone that Charlie Manuel would manage the most games in Phillies history when he signed on with the club prior to the 2005 season, many fans would have laughed.

Manuel managed his 1,332nd game Thursday night when the Phillies faced Arizona.

Manuel, who has the most wins in Phillies managerial history with 743, passed Gene Mauch for most games as Phils skipper.

When the Phillies decided against World Series champion Jim Leyland and selected Manuel, some pundits and fans questioned the decision.

"But you look at what Charlie has done with the franchise," MLB analyst Mitch Williams said. "He's been incredibly successful. He deserves all the credit for the Phillies' run."

This is the greatest era in the Phillies' 130-year history. Manuel has won a World Series, taken two National League pennants and has a .559 winning percentage as the Philadelphia manager.

His overall record is 743-588.

FANTASY

ADAM LEVITAN, LIVING THE FANTASY

METRO'S FANTASY GURU BREAKS IT ALL DOWN FOR YOU EVERY WEEK

NFL news

We'll find out within the next couple weeks if Rob Gronkowski will need a fifth procedure on his infected left forearm. If he does, Gronk's Week 1 status will be in doubt.

DYNASTY OWNERS START DROOLING

Some guys seek out the girlfriend experience. Others want the true general manager experience.

For those of us who dream of being Jerry Reese, rather than being with Sasha Grey, we have dynasty leagues. The players we draft can be with us forever, we can sell prospects at the deadline to go for a title and we can build a perennial contender. It's the truest form of fantasy.

The NFL draft provides a unique opportunity for owners. There are certain players that might not make a huge impact right away, but project to be major assets down the line:

Manly Christine

Why did the Seahawks use a second-round pick on Texas A&M's Christine Michael when they already have Marshawn Lynch and Robert Turbin? Three reasons. First, Lynch has a balky back and is a candidate to be a cap casualty as soon as 2015. Second, Lynch is facing DUI charges and possible suspension. And third, they really like Michael as a potential feature back down the line. Keep an eye on him.

Denard Robinson is a steal.
GETTY IMAGES

RB, not QB

Denard Robinson is 5-foot-10, 199 pounds, ran a 4.43 at the combine and has the jukes to make defenders look silly. That sounds a lot like Chris Johnson. Robinson was a running quarterback at Michigan, where he piled up an absurd 4,495 yards and 42 touchdowns. The Jags drafted him to play running back, where they have Maurice Jones-Drew in a contract year. Robinson has all the makings of a steal.

Cut the Cord

Cordarrelle Patterson played one year of Division I football. In that year, he caught 46 passes for 778 yards and five touchdowns. The Vikings made him a first-round pick because of what he can be down the line, not what he is now. The most naturally gifted athlete in his class, Patterson will start off behind Jerome Simpson, catching screens and running reverses. Within a couple years, he'll be the Vikings' No. 1 wideout.

Birds finalize rook roster before camp

NFL. Maclin says that Vick is winning the early quarterback battle. Camp opens Friday.

Is Mike Vick already ahead of Nick Foles on the depth chart?

According to Eagles receiver Jeremy Maclin, he is. Apparently Vick has been taking the majority of snaps with the first team.

"Right now, you got Mike going with the ones and Nick sprinkled in some reps here and there," Maclin told Philly.com.

Maclin was stating how the voluntary camps went, not interjecting any opinion.

The Eagles open rookie minicamp Friday at the NovaCare Complex. On Thursday, the team released its finalized 42-man roster for that camp. The list includes a good mix of undrafted rookies and journeymen veterans, including former Eagles linebacker Chris Gocong.

Some other names of note: Temple alums Marcus Green (LB), Montel Harris (RB), Devin Tyler (OL), along with Penn State's Pete Massaro (LB). Undrafted rookie free agent running back Miguel Maysonet is an intriguing one to watch.

Kruger is in the nest.
GETTY IMAGES

The team also announced that it had signed five draft picks: tight end Zach Ertz, safety Earl Wolff, defensive end Joe Kruger, cornerback Jordan Poyer and defensive end David King.

Eagles OTAs begin May 13 and continue sopradically through May 31.
